

School of Global, Urban and Social Studies

Translating and Interpreting

Symposium on:

Language, Diversity and Global Security

Date: Friday 4 April 2014
Time: 8.45 am – 5.00 pm
Venue: RMIT University (City Campus), Swanston Street

This symposium will explore security issues in multilingual environments through bringing together authors, experts, academics, researchers and practitioners from Australia and overseas in a symposium and will highlight Language, Diversity and Global Security as a significant area of specialisation and research.

Topics include:

- Issues in multilingual investigation, interrogation and community policing
- Interpreting and Translating in security settings
- Language and cultural issues for detainees
- War interpreters
- The right to fair trial for defendants with limited English proficiency
- Impartiality and competency considerations that impact on evidence
- Human trafficking
- Bio-Cultural Diversity and Human Security

Registration: Visit http://www.shortcourses.rmit.edu.au/course_page.php?course=S365109 or go to www.shortcourses.rmit.edu and enter S365109

Fee: $70.00 (Students/healthcare card holders are eligible for discounted fees. If you are eligible, call +61 3 9925 8111 to enrol)

Inquiries: Email translating.interpreting@rmit.edu.au

This event is eligible for NAATI revalidation points (40 points)

This event is generously sponsored by:

